Danzig Proposition Is Foremost in Germany

Correspondent Taylor Reports Hearing Continued Bolsheviki Threats Against Allied Plan

RHINELAND STRIKE SCHEDULED

By Frank J. Taylor

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, March 30.—The Danzig question has become the most important issue in Germany. The government has taken the position that serious trouble will result unless the Allies send General Haller's Polish army to Warsaw by some other route than Danzig. Anti-police demonstrations have occurred in Berlin, Weimar, Breslau and Danzig. The old threat of the Bolsheviki is resurrected. Many conservative leaders declare that if the government gives in to the Allies a new radical uprising will be precipitated. The German armistice commission has suggested that the Polish troops stay at Stettin or Libeau instead of Danzig. Americans returned from Danzig reported the Polish element have prepared to revolt.

BERLIN, March 31.—The general strike declared in the Rhineland by the Soviet for tomorrow is regarded as a possible beginning of a new campaign to overthrow the present government. Its full extent will not be learned until it actually gets under way. Among the demands being made by the Soviet are disarmament of all troops, freedom for all political prisoners, immediate and close relations with the Bolsheviki in Hungary and Russia.

Workers in Berlin were irate today over the government's arrest of Ernst Thälmann, leader of the Soviet. He is the most important radical leader next to George Leabour and was largely responsible for the overthrow of the Kaiser. The Spartacists claim his arrest was the result of the government's fear of further opposition.

ALLIES REPORTED TO BE TREATING WITH RUSS SOVIETS

(By United Press)

LONDON, April 1.—The Paris correspondent to the Daily News declared today that the Allies statesmen had submitted a proposal to the Russian Soviet government whereby the Bolsheviki would be admitted to the peace conference under certain conditions according to the correspondent. The Bolsheviki would be required to cease financing propaganda, discontinue fighting and to allow certain parts of Russia the right of self-determination. Premier Lenin is understood to be agreeable to the proposal the correspondent said.

382nd INFANTRY LEAVES GENOA

(By United Press)

NEW YORK, April 1.—An official cable from Rome to the Italian consul general here today said that the 332nd U. S. Infantry composed of Ohio and Pennsylvania drafted men had sailed from Genoa where a gold medal was presented to the entire regiment for valorous fighting with the armies in Italy.

SOUNDS FAMILIAR

Copenhagen, April 1.—A general strike is scheduled in Essen for tomorrow. Workmen demand recognition of a six hour day and 25 per cent increase in wages.

BELGIAN KING GOES TO CONFERENCE BY AIR ROUTE

PARIS, April 1.—King Albert arrived here from Brussels in an aeroplane this afternoon for the purpose of personally appealing to the peace conference to make Brussels the seat of the League of Nations.

MEXICAN LAND PROBLEM CLARIFIED; NO INTERNATIONAL ASPECT TO DEAL

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The proposed sale of Mexican land in lower California to Japanese interests appears to be merely a private transaction without international significance it was believed here today. In the absence of any official announcement on the subject the view of officials today was that unless it was clear that a carefully planned plot of aggression of certain foreign governments was behind it the United States government might not interfere. Advices at hand, it is understood, indicate that neither the Mexican or Japanese governments are interfering in lower California.

LOS ANGELES, April 1.—Announcement by President Harry Chandler of the California-Mexican Land and Title company that his 8,000 acres in lower California will not be sold to Japanese interests without the approval of the United States was looked upon here as somewhat clarifying the situation caused by reports that the ground would be sold to Japan.

HUNTERS EAGER TO HARRISBURG NOTES TAKE A HAND IN ON STATE BUSINESS THE VERMIN SHOOT

By United Press

Harrisburg, April 1.—Representative Rorke of Philadelphia, whose Sunday movie bill was reported to the House with a negative recommendation by the House Judiciary General Committee, made a vain effort to get his bill on the calendar notwithstanding the negative recommendation. Rorke said that the committee meeting had been dominated by the chairman and by the lobbyists of the Sabbath Observers' League.

The sportsmen interested have agreed to subscribe for a fund which will be used in providing prizes for the winners.

A schedule of points has been worked out by Jay Waugh, Secretary of the Clearfield county Hunters' Association, who is the moving spirit in the movement and an opportunity and incentive will be given the hunter to compete for these prizes.

The first prize is a Remington Slide action rifle which is on display at Lytle's shoe store. All those who contribute to the fund are eligible to compete in the vermin hunt.

Following is the schedule or point rating:

Crow, 10 points.
Owl, 10 points.
Hawk, 10 points.
Weasel, 30 points.
Mink, 30 points.
Fox, 50 points.
Wild Cat, 60 points.

The following rules will govern the hunt, the prizes being provided by voluntary contributions from the hunters and sportsmen interested and who are all eligible to compete.

RULES

Rule 1—All sportsmen whose names appear upon the subscription list are eligible to take part in this vermin shoot.

Rule 2—To receive credit in this contest vermin can be shot or trapped.

Rule 3. It is expected that the contestant will furnish the secretary with the vermin which he kills.

Rule 4. No objection to any body of men hunting together but in case a prize is won by them they will have to determine the owner.

Rule 5. Animals on which the state offers a bounty will be given back to the party killing same, so they can collect bounty from the state.

Sportsmen are not required to take out any hunters license to kill any "vermin."

Mrs. Louis Shapiro and daughter Mrs. Joseph Fine and Miss Helen Jacobson arrived home last evening from Lock Haven. Mrs. Joseph Fine will visit her parents a few days before returning to her home in Philadelphia.

Mrs. William Wilson and granddaughter Sadie have returned from visiting relatives in Renova.

Mrs. Hobart Callahan who has been ill with tonsillitis at her home on Reed street, is able to be about again.

PRESIDENT'S EFFORTS OF NO AVAL PEACE PLANS ARE STILL LAGGING

SPEAKING OF APRIL FIRST

A Gentle Reminder

It is related that a young man of Clearfield, who took advantage of this day to fool his venerable aunt, approached her with a surprising remark. "Aunt B— there is a big bug on your neck." To his surprise the aunt let out a scream which so frightened the young man that his only exclamation was a loud and explosive "Amen!" Whereas he wanted to inform her it was April Fools' day.

THAT "STILL ALARM" GOT SPEEDY DRIVER OUT EARLY APRIL 1

Today is April 1st. We can prove this statement by A. W. Lee, Jr., and if that is not sufficient proof we can add other members of the family to add their testimony.

"Bud" was the first Clearfielder to realize that "all fools day" had arrived and he found it out very shortly after the clock struck about 1:15 this morning.

As everybody knows "Bud" is the official driver of No. 1 Fire Company's hose wagon and, like the machine, he is some speedy at that, and the fellow who beats him to the hose house when the fire alarm sounds and to the fire immediately thereafter is sure going some.

Taking advantage of these facts several of "Bud's" friends engineered a "still alarm" for the hose wagon alone last night or early this morning.

A telephone call aroused the fireman from the draperies of his couch and an excited voice announced in his ear that the Navying, flat, opposite the Leonard House was on fire. One jump and "Deperate, Desmond, the Demonic Driver," lit in his pants and boots at the same time. Grabbing a coat and hat as he passed the hall, he rushed outside door was reached in ten seconds from receipt of the telephone call. Over the porch and down the steps in two jumps, "Bud" straightened out for the 150 yard dash to Market street. He made it with his night shirt streaming behind him in the wind, while a crowd of anxious conspirators viewed the passing whirlwind. Rounding the Snyder corner and throwing open the doors was in the driver's seat, with the engine chugging by the time Chief Eadie and Officer Carlson stepped out of the hallway onto the scene.

Bud hesitated long enough to invite the police aboard the machine, when Chief Eadie informed him he never attended fires on April 1st. Then the speedy fireman tumbled. With a sheepish grin he out of that car and hit the alley route for his bed and pleasant dreams.

He knows the conspirators and promises to get even.

POPULAR FOURTH WARD COUPLE MARRIED

Sergeant Worrell M. Jones and Miss Ruth Beightol well known and popular Clearfield young people, secured a marriage license Saturday and slipping quietly over to Port Matilda, Pa., had the words said Monday morning which made them man and wife.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Jones, of Dorey street, and made a record as a brave Yankee soldier with Pershing in France. He was seriously wounded but has entirely recovered. His bride is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Beightol, of the Fourth Ward, and was employed at Kurtz Bros. store for several years.

The Progress joins their many friends in congratulations and the wish for them of a long and happily wedded life.

STOCK OPENINGS

New York, April 1.—There was irregular price trend at the stock market opening today, with trading in small volume. United States Steel opened at 98 3/8 off, tobacco products 91 off 3/8, Mexican Petroleum 180 3/4 off 1/4.

REDRAFTING COMMITTEE READY TO REPORT BUT MONROE DOCTRINE AND JAP PLEAS NOT SETTLED

WILL BE DISCUSSED THURSDAY

By Carl D. Groat

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, April 1.—Despite President Wilson's impatient at the present delay there was strong evidence that the "big four" was still encountering bars to progress when it resumed its session today. Reparation, French territorial claims and the Hungarian situation were understood to constitute the principal suggestions for consideration. Some of the many optimistic suggestions declared the reparation question would be rapidly cleared up, barring unforeseen changes in present demands of foreign interests. Others, however, declared the matter of reparation was still far from settlement although admitting that there seems to be a trend to square all demands with the Germans. The "big four's" work was further tangled by injection of the Hungarian question yesterday afternoon.

By Fred S. Ferguson

PARIS, April 1.—The League of Nations will again occupy a prominent role in the peace work, Thursday when the league committee will meet to receive the new covenant from the drafting committee. The redraft which was completed by the printers late yesterday contains 26 articles, the same as the original draft. It is regarded as being considerably improved in working and carries several amendments.

The amendment carrying the Monroe Doctrine, Japanese claims for racial equality and France's recommendation for an international general staff will be brought up Thursday but definite information could be obtained in this report.

INDIANA "DRYS" ARE CELEBRATING DEMISE OF JNO. BARLEYCORN

Indianapolis, Ind., April 1.—Impressive obsequies are to be held in this city tomorrow, but the occasion will be one of jubilee and not of mourning. The obsequies will be for John Barleycorn, who was laid away in Indiana a year ago when the State prohibition law came into effect, and who is expected soon to make his final exit from the country at large, unless the liquor interests succeed in their present plans for throwing a monkey wrench into the machinery of the federal "dry" amendment.

The foes of the saloon have gone ahead with their plans for the celebration in the confident belief that they will be able to block any attempt to sidetrack the Federal law. The celebration will be an all-day affair and will be conducted under the auspices of the Indiana Dry Federation. The speakers and other participants will include many prominent workers of the Prohibition Party, the W. C. T. U., the Anti-Saloon League of America and kindred organizations.

BEAVER COUNTY DRY

Beaver, April 1.—Beaver county was dry again today. The five remaining saloons and hotels closed their doors last midnight following action of Judge George A. Baldwin in refusing to grant licenses.

Washington, D. C., April 1.—Another batch of the special taxes levied under the provisions of the six-billion dollar revenue law are to come into effect today. The list includes taxes on transportation and other public facilities and on insurance companies.

The only change made in the old taxes is in the rate on births and seats of parlor cars and vessels, which is lowered from 1 per cent to 5 per cent. The new taxes on admission to theatres and other places of amusement and on club dues also come into operation today. The stamp taxes also are effective from this date also the tax of 5 per cent on jewelry.

Virtually all of the other taxes provided for in the new revenue law come into effect on May 1 or soon thereafter. These will include the child labor tax, the soda fountain tax, which embraces ice cream and all soft drinks sold at soda fountains and the levies against the excess value of so-called semi-luxuries, which are articles of dress.

William Holden, of Curwensville, transacted business here yesterday.

Miss Irene Buchanan, a student at Central State Normal school, Lock Haven, Pa., is home to spend her Easter vacation. Miss Buchanan was chosen president of the Normal Y. W. C. A. for the ensuing year.

PACKING INTERESTS RELIEVED FROM LICENSE RULES OF FOOD OFFICIALS

WASHINGTON, April 1.—All packers were relieved from control of the administration's license system by proclamation of President Wilson effective today. The President signed the proclamation in Paris the food administration announced here today. The proclamation provides that all persons, firms, corporations or associations engaged in importing and manufacturing and all packers and distributors of fresh, canned or cured beef, pork, mutton or lard has been released from license by the food administration.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Thomas K. Barnes, wealthy New Yorker on a walking trip through New England, is caught in a storm miles from his destination. At a roadside point he meets a girl in the same plight. While they discuss the situation an automobile sent to meet the girl, arrives and Barnes is given a lift to her father's home, where she tells him that Barnes is a place called Green Fancy.

CHAPTER II.—At the tavern Barnes falls in with a stranded troupe of "starring" actors headed by Lyndon Rushcroft and becomes interested in them.

CHAPTER III.

Mr. Rushcroft Dissolves, Mr. Jones Intervenes, and Two Men Ride Away.

Mr. Rushcroft explained that he had had his supper. In fact, he went on to confess, he had been compelled, like the dog, to "speak" for it. What could be more disgusting, more degrading, he mumbled, than the spectacle of a man who had appeared in all of the principal theaters of the land, as star and leading support to stars, settling for his supper by telling stories and reciting poetry in the taproom of a tavern?

"Still," he consented, when Mr. Barnes insisted that it would be a kindness to him, "since you put it that way, I dare say I could do with a little snack, as you so aptly put it. Just a bite or two. What have you ready, Miss Tilly?"

Miss Tilly was a buxom female of forty or thereabouts, with spectacles. She was one of a pair of sedentary waitresses who had been so long in the employ of Mr. Jones that he hated the sight of them.

Mr. Rushcroft's conception of a bite or two may have staggered Barnes, but it did not bewilder Miss Tilly. He had four eggs with him, and other things in proportion. He talked a great deal, proving in that way that it was a supper well worth speaking for. Among other things he dilated at great length upon his reasons for not being a member of the Players or the Lambs in New York city. It seems that he had promised his dear, devoted wife that he would never join a club of any description. Dear old girl, he would as soon have cut off his right arm as to break any promise made to her. He brushed something away from his eyes, and his chin, contracted, trembled slightly. "What is it, Mr. Bacon?" Any word from New York?

Mr. Bacon hovered near, perhaps hungrily.

"Our genial host has instructed me to say to his latest guest that the rates are two dollars a day, in advance, all dining-room checks payable in presentation," said Mr. Bacon, apologetically.

Rushcroft exploded. "O scurvy insult," he boomed. "Confound his—!" The new guest was amiable. He interrupted the outraged star. "Tell Mr. Jones that I shall settle promptly," he said with a smile.

"It has just entered his bean that you may be an actor, Mr. Barnes," said Bacon.

Miss Tilly, overhearing drew a step or two nearer. A sudden interest in Mr. Barnes developed. She had not noticed before that he was an uncommonly good-looking fellow. She always had said that she adored strong, athletic faces.

(Later on she felt inspired to jot down, for use no doubt in some future literary production, a concise, though general, description of the magnificent Mr. Barnes. She utilized the back of the bill of fare and she wrote with the feverish ardor of one who dreads the loss of a first impression. I here append her visual estimate of the hero of this story.)

"He was a tall, shapely specimen of mankind," wrote Miss Tilly. "Broad-shouldered. Smooth-shaved face. Penetrating gray eyes. Short, curly hair about the color of mine. Strong hands of good shape. Face tanned considerably. Heavy dark eyebrows. Good teeth, very white. Square chin. Lovely smile that seemed to light up his room for everybody within hearing. Nose ideal. Mouth same. Voice aristocratic and reverberating with education. Age about thirty or thirty-one. Rich as Croesus. Well-turned legs. Would make a good no-bieman."

All this would appear to be reasonably definite were it not for the note regarding the color of his hair. It leaves to me the simple task of completing the very admirable description of Mr. Barnes by announcing that Miss Tilly's hair was an extremely dark brown.

Also it is advisable to append the following biographical information: Thomas Kingsbury Barnes, engineer, born in Montclair, N. J., September 26, 1885. Cornell and Beaux Arts, Paris. Son of the late Stephen S. Barnes, engineer, and Edith (Valentine) Barnes. Office, Metropolitan building, New York city. Residence, Amsterdam mansion. Clubs (Lack of space prevents listing them here). Devotions: golf, tennis and horseback riding. Member of the Royal Geographical Society. Member of the Loyal Legion and the Sons of the American Revolution.

Added to this, the more announcement that he was in a position to indulge a fancy for long and perhaps aimless walking tours through major or less, out-of-the-way sections of his own country, to say nothing of excursions in Europe.

He was rich. Perhaps not as rich as measured in these Muls-like days, but rich beyond the demands of aversion. His legacy had been an ample one. The fact that he worked hard at his profession from one year's end to the other—not excluding the six delirious to mentally productive jaunts—is proof sufficient that he was not content to subsist on the fruits of another man's enterprise. He was a worker.

The first fortnight of a proposed six weeks' jaunt through upper New England terminated when he laid aside his heavy pack in the little bedroom at Hart's Tavern. Cockcrow would find him ready and eager to begin his third week. At least so he thought. But, truth is, he had come to his journey's end; he was not to sling his pack for many a day to come.

After setting the mind of the landlord at rest, Barnes declined Mr. Rushcroft's invitation to "quaff" a cordial with him in the taproom, explaining that he was exceedingly tired and intended to retire early.

Instead of going up to his room immediately, however, he decided to have a look at the weather. His uneasiness concerning the young woman of the crossroads increased as he peered at the wall of blindness looming up beyond the circle of light. She was somewhere outside that stunner black wall and in the smothering grasp of those inviolable hills, but was she living or dead? Had she reached her journey's end safely? He tried to extract comfort from the confidence she had expressed in the ability and integrity of the old man who drove with far greater recklessness than one would have looked for in a wild and irresponsible youngster.

He recalled with a thrill the imperious manner in which she gave directions to the man, and his surprising servility. It suddenly occurred to him that she was no ordinary person; he was rather amazed that he had not thought of it before.

Moreover, now that he thought of it, there was, even in the agreeable recollections she had made to his offerings, the faint suggestion of an accent that should have struck him at the time but did not for the obvious reason that he was then not at all interested in her. Her English was so perfect that he had failed to detect the almost imperceptible foreign flavor that now took definite form in his reflections. He tried to place this accent. Was it French or Italian or Spanish? Certainly it was not German.

He took a few turns up and down the long porch, stopping finally at the upper end. The clear, inspiring clang of a hammer on an anvil fell suddenly upon his ears. He looked at his watch. The hour was nine, certainly an unusual time for men to be at work in a forge. He remembered two men in the taproom who were bare armed and wore the shapeless leather aprons of the smithy.

He had been standing there not more than half a minute peering in the direction from whence came the rhythmic bang of the anvil—at no great distance, he was convinced—

TELEPHONE COMPANIES TO COLLECT TAX

The Bell Telephone company and the H. & C company have made arrangements for the collecting of the tax on certain telephone messages, as required by the new Revenue act which becomes effective April 1, 1919.

On each message of more than 14c but not more than 50c, including overtime and messenger charges, the tax is 5c. When the charge is more than 50c, the tax is 10c. The law directs that the tax be collected from the person paying for the message, and the Telephone Company is held responsible for the collection of the tax.

The monthly toll service statement which the Telephone company renders to its subscribers will show the messages on which the tax is imposed and the amount of such tax, in addition to the regular charges for service.

Hints On Winter Driving

Reading—and heeding—these hints on winter driving will make you a wealthier, wiser, happier motorist in frigid weather. They are reproduced from a bit of a booklet just issued by the United Motors Service, Incorporated, which comprises the motor departments of the Delco, Kixxon and Remy organizations. When they appear in these columns, learn them in substance and then where you can refer to them. They may help you out in trouble some cold day.

For Proper Generator Operation

Watch the ammeter—in cold weather you make shorter runs, use the cranks more frequently, and burn lights more hours. Low generating—or none at all—will soon exhaust the battery. If the instrument on the dash which reads "charge" and "discharge" doesn't show from 6 to 10 points on the "charge" side—depending on the car—at say, 20 miles per hour, you may be inviting trouble.

Examine plugs—Failure to run evenly on "all six" is an often plug trouble as anything else. Plug points not only get near together but too far separated. Plug porcelain, the not actually broken, may be just naturally worn out and faulty. When you give mines, look fast to the plugs. (See illustration above.)

Contact points—These points may be due to dirt or worn contact points. The contact points should be properly adjusted. If they are not, a few minutes at the contact station, possibly saving the generator and battery.

Consult a trouble with the generator by a rapid burning and pitting of the contact points, and submit the generator for inspection and test.

BARN IS FARMER'S BEST INVESTMENT

Modern Building Increases Production, Lessens Labor

Plans Provide for Combination Dairy and Horse Stable—Brings All the Live Stock Under One Roof

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm. He is a successful business farmer, and his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1224 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only include three-cent stamp for reply.

"Better barns mean better and more productive cows." That is the axiom of the successful business farmer. Cows are valuable. More valuable than they have been in the history of the dairy industry in America. As profit producers they stand at the head of the livestock division of the farming industry.

When the owner of a dairy herd demonstrates to himself that a warm, well ventilated stable causes greater production at the time of the year when milk brings the highest price, he wonders why he did not build earlier. And when, with the modern barn equipment, he realizes that a great part of the unpleasant work about the barn can be performed easily and with less effort, he is keen for modern conveniences in the barn as he is to have them in the house.

A comfortable cow is the best revenue producer. A cow that is comfortable is allowed to go freely until given times in the day does not produce the quantity of milk she is capable of. A cold barn, that is poorly ventilated, a cow must consume a great deal of food to keep her warm. In a tight stable a greater portion of the food is converted into milk. Giving water in the barn, where the cow can take a drink whenever she is thirsty, also means greater milk production. Put the water into the trough by do it before instead of after milking. This is the advice of the successful dairyman.

Good Buildings Reduce Waste.
During the last two years, the business farmer has been making money.

But he has realized that with the proper buildings he could have eliminated much of the waste around the farm, and have made more profit. Now he has a chance to get the buildings that have been denied him during war.

A combination dairy and horse barn, such as is shown in the accompanying illustration, is the ideal building, since it brings under one roof all the work of caring for the live stock. Constructed with a trussed rafter gambrel self-supporting roof, arranged conveniently so that the work can be performed with the least number of steps, equipped with all the labor-saving devices, and built as sanitary as barns can be made. This building will prove a valuable addition to the farm group.

While this barn will add much to the attractiveness of the farm landscape, what will appeal to the business farmer is its interior. The floor plan that is shown gives the details of its arrangement. The main or cow stable, part of the barn, is 30 feet by 36 feet. The horse barn forms an ell and is 30 feet by 30 feet. Adjoining the rear of the cow barn are two silos, 14 feet in diameter.

Accommodates 38 Cows.
The cow stable is designed to accommodate 38 animals in single stalls, and four others in pens. The cows are faced out, a feed alley, five feet wide, being between the wall and the line of stalls. The litter alley runs through the center of the building and is eight feet four inches wide, forming a driveway through the barn. The advantage of this arrangement is that a team can be driven in one door, pass between the stalls, and go out at the other end of the building. At the rear of the cow barn are two feed rooms, connected with the silos. There also is a toilet room here.

The horse barn will accommodate ten animals, eight in stalls and two in box stalls. The horse office is on one side of the entrance and the harness room on the other.

While only the general scheme of equipment for this building is shown, the plans contemplate the use of many specialties that make for efficiency in doing the work required. The doors are equipped with storm-tight, easy rolling hangers; drinking water is piped to individual drinking cups at each stall; providing clean, fresh water at all times of the day or night; feed and litter carriers on overhead tracks make the distribution of food and the removal of manure easy. In the hay loft, a carrier is provided.

Careful provision has been made for ventilation, one of the most important features of the modern dairy and horse barn. There are air pumps on cupola ventilators on the roof, three large ones on the ridge of the main building, and a smaller one on the south

the wing. These aerators pull the foul air out of the stables through well insulated, foul air flues. Fresh air comes in through the windows as they are tilted back at the top, resting on galvanized iron window ventilating shields. With these the fresh air is deflected to the stable ceiling, where it diffuses gradually; no direct draft blows against the animals. In summer, the flues are greatest, germicidal. Flues of windows are provided in this barn.

Taken all together, the plan shows gives all the practical features that a modern barn should have to make the animals comfortable and productive. There is another side to this question of building a barn. A strictly modern barn building with all the best equipment is a good investment. There is a further side.

Much Labor Eliminated.
Perhaps the country's greatest business, that in the past there have been many disadvantages that have given the young men from the farm under the old conditions. The work was not pleasant, especially that in the barn. But when there is a com-

crete floor, with gutters into which the dirt can be washed; when there are carriers that take the food to the mangers and the manure out; and water at each stall, so that none has to be carried; or the animals driven to an outdoor water trough, which in the winter was usually frozen, there is none of the arduous labor taking care of the livestock that there was in the past.

A modern dairy and horse barn is one of the best paying investments the farmer can make. It will bring large returns in both money and satisfaction. It will lighten the work of caring for the live stock and cut the labor cost on the farm.

Leaving out all considerations of heeding the government's call to "Build a Building" in order to provide employment for the returned soldiers, building a barn that will provide a clean, convenient and sanitary home for the live stock is the farmer's best investment.

CHICAGO SELECTS A MAYOR TODAY

(By United Press)

Chicago, April 1.—Chicago labor declared a holiday today to see that the city gets the right sort of mayor. Wherever it could be done without too severe a jolt to industry union men absented themselves from their tasks to vote for John Fitzpatrick, the new "labor party" candidate for the chief executive's job.

Father Dearborn had his pick of six men who are anxious to manage his big municipal business for the ensuing four years. They are:

Mayor William Dale Thompson, Republican.

Robert Sydnor, Democrat.

MacLay Hynes, Independent.

John Fitzpatrick, labor.

John Collins, Socialist.

Rodolph Carns, Socialist-Labor.

The elections today formed a stirring climax for a campaign that has been unusually warm from its pre-primary period.

Thompson and Hale of the old parties fought each other vigorously. Hynes, pointing to his record as state attorney, waged unrelenting war on both men.

The labor party, headed by Fitzpatrick, worked more quietly, but had the backing of most of the city's union men, an organization expected to prove a great help in getting out a silent vote.

Fitzpatrick was expected to detract much from the usual socialist vote. However, both the Socialist and Labor parties were affected somewhat by a split which put a third candidate for those votes into the field.

Labor union officials deprecated a tendency among their following to term today's holiday a "one day strike." Industry was not to be hampered, they said, but all men who could were asked to aid at the polls.

Regular Old Fashioned April First Mystery Is With Us Today

Tracks always have the atmosphere of mystery about them. Doesn't make any difference whether they be railroad tracks, which lead into the land of far away, or little or big foot prints.

Tracks key up your imagination—particularly odd looking tracks. Perhaps you can't figure out the sort of animal that has passed on its journey. That adds to the zest of the question.

Just because today is April 1st, with its pranks and mysteries, it is a right good time to try to puzzle out the odd looking tracks which appear in this issue.

Many animals have big, husky feet and it's worth while brushing up on this track business to discover what kind of animal makes this sort of foot print.

After all, a little fun adds to the joy of living. And you'll undoubtedly get some fun out of this real April first mystery.

"Follow the Tracks" is the cry all over the nation today. Study this mystery picture and those that follow tomorrow, Thursday and Friday. It'll be a lot of enjoyment. Just "Follow the Tracks!"

SHEFFER HOUSE WILL BE RAZED TO GROUND

The Hotel Shener, the three-story building on the corner of Front and Pine streets, which for years has been a Phillipsburg landmark, having been continuously a public inn since Civil war days, is to be "completely torn down, and a handsome new business block erected on the site."

Louis Linberg, who purchased the property from the First National bank of Phillipsburg will use the structure exclusively as a store. The new block will be built on the Lloyd House lot, the building which was the work of the builder who built the block, W. A. Hoyt, engineer, of Altoona.

What Fordson Service Will Do For You

There are two big factors to consider when you are buying a tractor—both equally important—the tractor itself and the service rendered.

A tractor which is standing idle because the service station is far away or because the dealer hasn't the proper parts is a poor investment, no matter how well the tractor itself may be made.

Fordson Tractors are selling by the thousands every month and are giving universal satisfaction all over the world because of this:

The tractor itself is made as durable, dependable, efficient and economical as the best engineering skill, the finest materials and workmanship can make it.

And added to this wherever a Fordson Tractor is sold, you will find parts and service as quickly and easily available as the hero-sense you put into the tank.

Our service means this to you. First that we will thoroughly instruct you how to get the most out of your tractor—how to operate it properly so as to avoid trouble—how to make all minor repairs and adjustments so that on rare occasions will you have to call for help.

Then when you do require help for repair work or parts you will find us ready at a moment's notice.

Our stock of parts is complete, our mechanics are experts.

Fordson service is delivered to your farm.

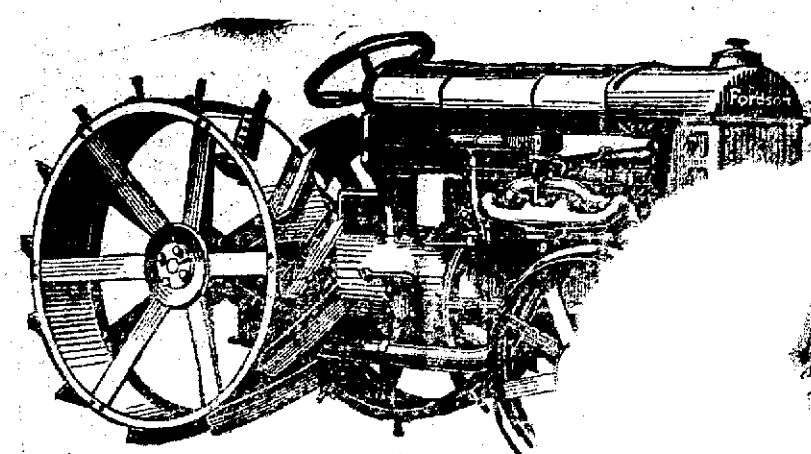

To own a Fordson means that you own a durable, dependable, economical tractor that will serve you every working day in the year.

The Fordson company make it durable and dependable.

We keep it so.

YOU can't escape a cape, my dear.
Springy, clingy lightness of satin,
serge and wool have subtle appeal.

SOME NEW & NOVEL TOUCHES

BY MARGARET RHOE
(Written for The United Press)

You can't escape a cape, my dear.
The fashion first was Eve's:
She made herself some swaggar ones
Of all the choicest leaves.
And when the leaves began to fall
She wrapped herself in thought,
And blushed also mantled her
When with the apple caught.
Her mantle fad's descended now
On modish maids today,
Though just a trifle thicker are
Their fabrics, I should say.

New York, March 28—The spring
maid is all wrapped up in capes as voluminously as her predecessor Madame Winter. No matter how she tries she can't seem to get out from under the graceful folds. The only difference between the winter and Spring models is that those folds
have dwindled from the heavy richness of fur, velvet and quivertyn to
the springy, clingy, lightness of serge,
satin, wool jersey or tricotine.

If we follow old Omar's admonition
and fling out winter garment of repentance in the fires of spring it
will only be to do another exactly similar in cut and style.
Of course the Spring capes have
some new and novel touches to bring them up to date, such as embroidery
ornamentation, scarf collars ending in swishing tassels; patch pockets and button evenscences jutting out in nobby designs.

A perfect jewel of a model is of pearl gray jersey with a deep soft cape collar edged in a wide band of black silk braid. The wide braid also finishes the slashes for the arms and
a vivid lining of orange and black checker board satin shows free and unchecked when the wind blows.

A smart draped cape of black taffeta has one of the deep soft collars
also, which is edged with a wide
fringe of long narrow taffeta ribbon
loops, as is also the bottom of the cape. The lining of this distinctive model is a vivid apple green silk
crepe, fruitfully sprinkled with cherry
polka dots and plum-hued dashes.

Almost all of the cape linings strike
such a gay, joyous and riotous color
note that they seem to indicate the real inner nature of their fair wear-
ers. A demure young thing, closely swathed from her throat to her pointed toe in the enveloping folds of a navy blue serge cape, surely reveals
her true inner self when she throws back the cape and unfurls the joy of
the Mandarin red lining, that hectic
new shade which is a brighter, lighter, younger sister to henna red and
a first cousin to burnt orange.

Sort of a summer evolution of the cape are the new old mid-Victorian scarfs which are to cling to fair
shoulders again with all the elusive
grace and piquant charm of the clinging vine pre-suffragette era.

Quaint crepe de chine ones with woven figured borders on either end
comes in pastel tones, lovely, cloudy
chiffon ones with printed borders of
roses and garlands, exquisite lace ones of filmy black chamilly or the creamy silky meshes of the Spanish
mantilla, gay Bandere striped ones
of Romana silk, and saucy little taffeta ones in black, gray or blue, lined with a contrasting light color and self fringed all around. They are all irresistible and you'll find you're much more fascinating if you shrug

your shoulders in them rather than
at them.

There is as much art and coquetry
in gracefully managing a scarf as there is in manipulating a fan. They can't freeze an up-to-date 1919 female however. She can step as airily from her warworker uniform into the butterfly fluff of a ruffled organdie and the film of a chiffon scarf as if she had never been out of 'em. The hand that drove a motor lorry in France can flip a fan as effectively,
and the shoulders that were put to
the wheels of war can shrug in a scarf as seductively as the 100 per cent. prunes and prisms female that never got out of her shell or her scarf. So don't scare at the scarf.
Just dare it and wear it.

AS THE TYRONE FELLOW SAW IT

The Tyrone Herald in its report of
the girls basket ball game wound up
its article as follows:

The team that played Tyrone last night at Clearfield was not the same team that put up such a hard fight at Tyrone. It seems that the coach expected a hard game and endeavored
to counteract the great speed of the Tyrone team by superior weight, so
he substituted the employed girls for the younger set. This action of Director, Graffius did not meet with the approval of the younger girls or of the devotees which was evidenced by the large number of persons in the audience who cheered the visiting team.
This team did not display the class of
basket ball shown by the regular team.

After the game the Tyrone girls
were royally entertained by the Clearfield High Sophomore girls' team and
the class at the beautiful new High school building on Market street, and later in the evening at the home of Miss Mabel Brown, a former member of the faculty of Tyrone High. The Tyrone Girls' team certainly appreciate the kindness of the sophomore class and Miss Brown.

Oliver Schell, of the High school
squad, was along on the trip, and had charge of the scoring for Tyrone,
while Miss Olson, of the High faculty,
very ably chaperoned the girls.
Clearfield's hopes were interred the
same night they died.

when some one spoke suddenly at his elbow. He whirled and found himself facing the grumpy landlord.

"Good Lord! You startled me," he exclaimed. His gaze traveled past the fat figure of Putnam Jones and rested on that of a second man, who leaned, with legs crossed and arms folded, against the porch post directly in front of the entrance to the house. His features almost wholly concealed by the long-brimmed slouch hat that came down over his eyes. He, too, it seemed to Barnes, had sprung from nowhere.

"Pierce night," said Putnam Jones, observing the corner pipe from his lips. Then, as an afterthought, "Where'd you walk from today?"

"I slept in a farmhouse last night, about fifteen miles north of this place," he said.

"That's a little ways out of town," speculated Mr. Jones, "isn't it?"

"Goin' over to Canada," replied the stranger.

"No. I shall turn west, I think, and strike for the Lake Champlain country."

"I suppose you've traveled right smart in Europe?"

"Quite a bit, Mr. Jones."

"Any particular part?"

"No," said Barnes, suddenly divining that he was being "pumped." "One end to the other, you might say."

"What about those countries down about Bulgaria and Roumania? I've been considerable interested in what's going to become of them if Germany gets licked. What do they get out of it, either way?"

Barnes spent the next ten minutes speculating upon the future of the Balkan states. Jones had little to say. He was interested, had drunk in all the information that Barnes had to impart. He puffed at his pipe, nodded his head from time to time, and occasionally put a leading question. And quite as abruptly as he introduced the topic he changed it.

"Not many automobiles up here this time of the year," he said. "I was a little surprised when you said a fellow had given you a lift. Where from?"

"The crossroads a mile down. He came from the direction of Frog's Gap and was on his way to meet someone at Spanish Falls. It appeared that there was a misunderstanding. The driver didn't meet the train, and the person he was going after was all the way to the forks. We passed each other there, Mr. Jones, and we guided the stranger to the house. She was bound for a place called Green Fancy."

"Did you say that?"

"Yes, I was proposing to help her out of her predicament when the black motor came racing down the road."

"What for sort of looking lady was that?"

"She wore a veil," said Barnes succinctly.

"Could that impression. By the way, Mr. Jones, what and where is Green Fancy?"

"It's a green house," replied Jones sagaciously. "Green as a green house, a man named Curtis built it a couple of years ago and he had a lot of things about it. It green, might be a little crazy, for all I know. Anyway, after he got it finished he settled down to live in it, and from that day to this he's never been out of the place."

"Is it possible that he isn't there at all?"

"Well, there, all right. Every now and then he has visitors—just like this woman today—and sometimes they come down here for supper. They don't hesitate to speak of him, so he must be there. Miss Tilly has got the idea that he is a recluse. If you know what that is."

The door of the saloon had been thrown open and someone was leading forth freshly shod horses.

A moment later the horses—prancing, high-spirited animals—their bridle bits held by a strapping blacksmith, came into view. Barnes looked in the direction of the steps. The two men had disappeared. Instead of stopping directly in front of the steps the sight led the stranger a distance

"It's plain to see," said Mr. McGee, "but there's but one. That's Golden Sun. The children cry for it you see."

THE rich flavor and pleasant aroma results from skillfully blending all the choicest berries—steal cut to prevent all sediment, chaff or dust. Clear, clean and delightful. Peddlers cannot furnish you with Golden Sun Coffee.

beyond and into the darkness.

Putnam Jones abruptly changed his position. He insinuated his long body between Barnes and the doorway, at the same time rather loudly proclaiming that the sun appeared to be over.

"Yes, sir," he repeated, "he seems to have let up altogether. Ought to have a nice dry tomorrow. Mr. Barnes—nice, cool day for walkin'."

Voices came up from the darkness. Jones had not been able to cover them with his own. Barnes caught two or three sharp commands, rising above the pawing of horses' hoofs, and then a great clatter as the mounted horsemen rode off in the direction of the crossroads.

Barnes waited until they were muffled by distance and then turned to Jones with the laconic remark:

"They seem to be foreigners, Mr. Jones."

Jones' manner became natural once more. He looked against one of the posts and striking a match on his leg, relighted his pipe.

"Kind o' curious about 'em?" he drawled.

"I never entered my mind until this instant to be curious," said Barnes.

"Well, it entered their minds about an hour ago to be curious about you," said the other.

Use Soothing Musterole

When those sharp pains go shooting through your head, when your skull seems as if it would split, just rub a little Musterole on your temples and neck. It draws out the inflammation, soothes away the pain, usually giving quick relief.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Better than a mustard plaster and does not blister.

Many doctors and nurses frankly recommend Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, sciatica, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or limbs, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frost-bite—colic of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

Mr. A. Z. Wolf, head of the firm of Wolf, Edmiston & Co. was a DuBois visitor yesterday where he transacted business.

Mr. James Richards disposed of his runabout automobile yesterday to DuBois parties. Mr. Richards is proprietor of one of the most popular tonorial establishments in Curwensville.

Mike Kovach, of the firm of Kovach & Vaughn, has a little daughter in the Clearfield hospital under treatment for gland trouble. The little one will also have its adenoids removed before being brought home.

Mrs. Mary Hudson, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. LaPorte, for the past month, left for Olean, N. Y., yesterday where she will make her home with a sister until the return of her husband who is serving with the A. E. F. in France.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Lantz are packing their goods and getting ready to remove to their new home at Mt. Union. Rev. Lantz on Sunday preached two powerful sermons which moved many of his congregation to tears, he himself showing much emotion during the discourse. The Lantz family during their residence in Curwensville has made many friends who will never forget them, no difference where their lot may be cast. Mr. Lantz is a man who has made friends with saint and sinner alike, and departs from this town carrying with him the knowledge that the entire population wish him unbounded success in his new field of labor. The new minister, Rev. Biddle is expected to arrive with his family on Wednesday at which time his congregation will give them a royal welcome at the parsonage.

The members of the Kelly hunting camp, of which Rev. Lantz was a member turned out in a body Sunday forenoon to hear their hunting comrade preach for probably the last time. It is said that there were more men attended church Sunday morning at the M. E. church than was ever known before. The large auditorium was crowded to its capacity.

Messrs. Orvis Kerns and I. D. Kerns the former residing in Roanoke, Va., and the latter at Brockport, Pa., spent Sunday in Curwensville with a sister. They attended the funeral of their sister, Mrs. L. C. Dyer, who was buried at Osceola on Saturday, and whose death was mentioned in the Curwensville letter a few days ago.

A little child of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mays, residing on Anderson avenue South Side, is very ill suffering with an attack of congestion of the lungs.

Mr. Doyle, of Ridgway, president of a collecting agency, was in town yesterday shaking hands with old friends and transacting business in his line.

Messrs. Earl Clark and Lew McLaughlin expect to leave shortly for the oil fields in and around Tulsa, Okla. They contemplate spending the summer in that land of oil activity. It will be no wild goose chase with Clark as he has been in that country once or twice before.

Mr. Henry Heitzner, formerly proprietor of the Busy Bee restaurant, has purchased a horse and wagon and will now give his attention to the draying business.

Mr. M. D. Kirk, chief engineer for the Pittsburgh Coal and Iron company, was in town and spent Saturday and Sunday with his mother, Mrs.

LEITZINGER BROTHERS

A. M. Kirk and with his brother H. P. Kirk. He returned to Pittsburgh on Monday.

Chief of Police Clark is remodeling the interior of his home. Carpenters, painters and paper hangers have been busy there for the past few days.

Mr. Creighton Clark, who has been in the northern part of the state for the past eight months has returned to his home here.

A small fire occurred at the home of Wm. Buck, Eastvue, Saturday. The fire originated from an overheated oil stove. Neighbors arrived in time to put the fire out before much damage was done. No alarm was sent in to the fire department.

During the month of March there was issued from the Curwensville postoffice 846 money orders, a slight falling off from the previous month. During the year 1918, this office did over $200,000 worth of business, not including money orders, war stamps or postal savings. $50,000 worth of war stamps were also sold. Yet there has been no increase of salary, although month by month the work of this office increases.

AUTHORITIES MAKING RIGID INVESTIGATION

Local authorities are making a careful investigation of all rumors that are likely to shed light on the origin of the destructive Grant block fire.

Saturday a man while under the influence of liquor made threats against town properties. He was locked up, though officials are inclined to believe he is harmless. He will probably be released today, as it was shown he was not around the night of the fire.

Another arrest is likely to be made of a character who has been mentioned before as a fire bug.—Pittsburgh Journal.

Maxwell—a car improved each day

THERE is nothing like doing one thing year after year because it always results in doing the thing well.

This is the underlying thought in every Maxwell.

It is why 300,000 Maxwells have been built on the original chassis plan. Each day this car grows better. Each day it is improved somewhere.

There never has been a radical change in design. There never has been a departure from the original idea.

Still there have been more than 1000 improvements made in this car since the first one was built.

Every time a chance was seen to make it better the improvement was made.

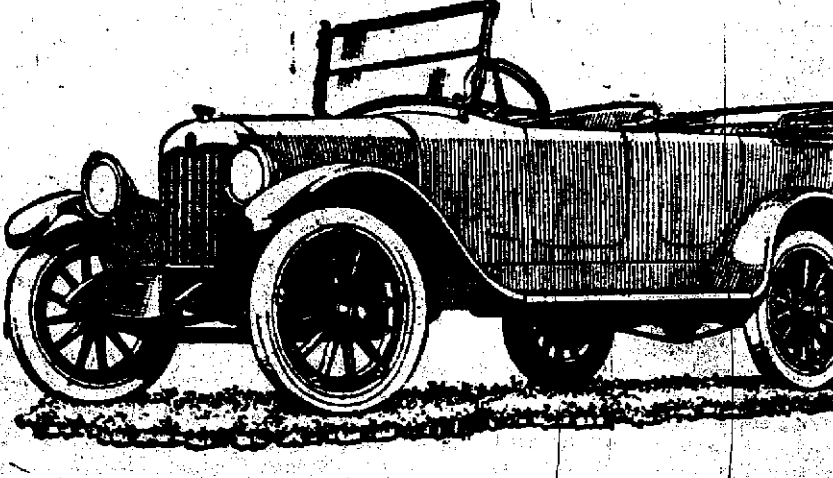

That's why a Maxwell runs on and on in almost endless mileage; why it grows better as it grows older; why it stands the moods of the careless driver.

No one has ever criticized the Maxwell on the grounds of reliability.

No one can criticize it on the grounds of good looks.

For there have been 24 recent improvements in its appearance.

See the Maxwell today and then get your check book ready.

BEDFAST EVERY WINTER; STOMACH TROUBLE GONE

Mrs. Merahon Found Speedy Relief After 18 Years' Suffering.

"I had suffered from stomach trouble for 18 years, and had spent hundreds of dollars doctoring. Every winter I was bedfast most of the time. I commenced taking Milk Emulsion last fall, and before I had taken half a dozen bottles, my stomach trouble disappeared and I have had no return of it since. This is the first winter in 18 years that I have not been bedfast. I also give Milk Emulsion to the children for cough, with splendid results."—Mrs. W. G. Merahon, Brazil, Ind.

Thousands of people who have suffered for years from stomach and bowel troubles, as Mrs. Merahon did, have found the same wonderful relief and lasting benefit from Milk Emulsion.

Milk Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and cathartics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength, Milk Emulsion is strongly recommended to run-down nervous people, and it has produced amazing results in many cases of tuberculosis of the lungs. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. A truly wonderful medicine for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milk Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions, and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milk Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold and guaranteed by Stewart's Drug Co.

Danzig Proposition Is Foremost in Germany

Correspondent Taylor Reports Hearing Continued Bolsheviki Threats Against Allied Plan

RHINELAND STRIKE SCHEDULED

By Frank J. Taylor

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, March 30.—The Danzig question has become the most important issue in Germany. The government has taken the position that serious trouble will result unless the Allies send General Haller's Polish army to Warsaw by some other route than Danzig. Anti-police demonstrations have occurred in Berlin, Weimar, Breslau and Danzig. The old threat of the Bolsheviki is resurrected. Many conservative leaders declare that if the government gives in to the Allies a new radical uprising will be precipitated. The German armistice commission has suggested that the Polish troops stay at Stettin or Libeau instead of Danzig. Americans returned from Danzig reported the Polish element have prepared to revolt.

By Frank J. Taylor

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, March 31.—The general strike declared in the Rhineland by the Soviet for tomorrow is regarded as a possible beginning of a new campaign to overthrow the present government. Its full extent will not be learned until it actually gets under way. Among the demands being made by the Soviet are disarmament of all troops, freedom for all political prisoners, immediate and close relations with the Bolsheviki in Hungary and Russia.

Workers in Berlin were irate today over the government's arrest of Ernst Thälmer, leader of the Soviet. He is the most important radical leader next to George Leabour and was largely responsible for the overthrow of the Kaiser. The Spartacists claim his arrest was the result of the government's fear of further opposition.

ALLIES REPORTED TO BE TREATING WITH RUSS SOVIETS

(By United Press)

LONDON, April 1.—The Paris correspondent to the Daily News declared today that the Allies statesmen had submitted a proposal to the Russian Soviet government whereby the Bolsheviki would be admitted to the peace conference under certain conditions according to the correspondent. The Bolsheviki would be required to cease financing propaganda, discontinue fighting and to allow certain parts of Russia the right of self-determination. Premier Lenin is understood to be agreeable to the proposal the correspondent said.

382nd INFANTRY LEAVES GENOA

Copenhagen, April 1.—A general strike is scheduled in Essen for tomorrow. Workmen demand recognition of a six hour day and 25 per cent increase in wages.

BELGIAN KING GOES TO CONFERENCE BY AIR ROUTE

PARIS, April 1.—King Albert arrived here from Brussels in an aeroplane this afternoon for the purpose of personally appealing to the peace conference to make Brussels the seat of the League of Nations.

MEXICAN LAND PROBLEM CLARIFIED; NO INTERNATIONAL ASPECT TO DEAL

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The proposed sale of Mexican land in lower California to Japanese interests appears to be merely a private transaction without international significance it was believed here today. In the absence of any official announcement on the subject the view of officials today was that unless it was clear that a carefully planned plot of aggression of certain foreign governments was behind it the United States government might not interfere. Advances at hand, it is understood, indicate that neither the Mexican or Japanese governments are interfering in lower California.

LOS ANGELES, April 1.—Announcement by President Harry Chandler of the California-Mexican Land and Title company that his 8,000 acres in lower California will not be sold to Japanese interests without the approval of the United States was looked upon here as somewhat clarifying the situation caused by reports that the ground would be sold to Japan.

HUNTERS EAGER TO HARRISBURG NOTES TAKE A HAND IN ON STATE BUSINESS THE VERMIN SHOOT

By United Press

Harrisburg, April 1.—Representative Rorke of Philadelphia, whose Sunday movie bill was reported to the House with a negative recommendation by the House Judiciary General Committee, made a vain effort to get his bill on the calendar notwithstanding the negative recommendation. Rorke said that the committee meeting had been dominated by the chairman and by the lobbyists of the Sabbath Observers' League.

The sportsmen interested have agreed to subscribe for a fund which will be used in providing prizes for the winners.

A schedule of points has been worked out by Jay Waugh, Secretary of the Clearfield county Hunters' Association, who is the moving spirit in the movement and an opportunity and incentive will be given the hunter to compete for these prizes.

The first prize is a Remington Slide action rifle which is on display at Lytle's shoe store. All those who contribute to the fund are eligible to compete in the vermin hunt.

Following is the schedule or point rating:

Crow, 10 points.
Owl, 10 points.
Hawk, 10 points.
Weasel, 30 points.
Mink, 30 points.
Fox, 50 points.
Wild Cat, 60 points.

The following rules will govern the hunt, the prizes being provided by voluntary contributions from the hunters and sportsmen interested and who are all eligible to compete.

RULES

Rule 1—All sportsmen whose names appear upon the subscription list are eligible to take part in this vermin shoot.

Rule 2—To receive credit in this contest vermin can be shot or trapped.

Rule 3—It is expected that the contestant will furnish the secretary with the vermin which he kills.

Rule 4—No objection to any body of men hunting together but in case a prize is won by them they will have to determine the owner.

Rule 5—Animals on which the state offers a bounty will be given back to the party killing same, so they can collect bounty from the state.

Sportsmen are not required to take out any hunters license to kill any "vermin."

Mrs. Louis Shapiro and daughter Mrs. Joseph Fine and Miss Helen Jacobson arrived home last evening from Lock Haven. Mrs. Joseph Fine will visit her parents a few days before returning to her home in Philadelphia.

Representatives of labor from all parts of the state and advisors and delegates from the employers of labor were present today when the proposed drafting of amendments planned for the Workmen's Compensation act were discussed at a public hearing. Harry A. Mackay, chairman of the compensation board stated that the workmen are urging three definite changes in the act of 1915 including increase in the rates of compensation, and a shorter waiting period between the time of accident and the medical aid and the beginning of compensation.

The Senate finally passed the Baldwin resolution providing for a department of commissioners to investigate the public school system and the administration and distribution of state appropriations. This resolution now goes to the House where it is expected to be taken up at once.

The Senate committee on education today ordered reported out the House bill regarding the teaching of German in public and normal schools of the state.

Mrs. Nettie Farwell, of Curwensville, was shopping in town yesterday.

Robert Mitchell and John Lytle left yesterday to spend a few days in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallizer of Gram plan were shopping in town today.

Dr. C. E. Chase motored to Morristown today to transact business.

Mrs. Roy Boyce and daughter Anna left today to visit the former's parents in Slatedale.

Mrs. William Wilson and granddaughter Sadie have returned from visiting relatives in Renova.

Mrs. Hobart Callahan who has been ill with tonsillitis at her home on Reed street, is able to be about again.

PRESIDENT'S EFFORTS OF NO AVAL PEACE PLANS ARE STILL LAGGING

*SPEAKING OF APRIL FIRST

A Gentle Reminder

It is related that a young man of Clearfield, who took advantage of this day to fool his venerable aunt, approached her with a surprising remark. "Aunt B— there is a big bug on your neck." To his surprise the aunt let out a scream which so frightened the young man that his only exclamation was a loud and explosive "Amen!" Whereas he wanted to inform her it was April Fools' day.

THAT "STILL ALARM" GOT SPEEDY DRIVER OUT EARLY APRIL 1

Today is April 1st. We can prove this statement by A. W. Lee, Jr., and if that is not sufficient proof we can get other members of the family to add their testimony.

"Bud" was the first Clearfielder to realize that "all fools day" had arrived and he found it out very shortly after the clock struck about 1:15 this morning.

As everybody knows "Bud" is the official driver of No. 1 Fire Company's hose wagon and, like the machine, he is some speedy at that, and the fellow who beats him to the hose house when the fire alarm sounds and to the fire immediately thereafter is sure going some.

Taking advantage of these facts several of "Bud's" friends engineered a "still alarm" for the hose wagon alone last night or early this morning. A telephone call aroused the firemen from the draperies of his couch and an excited voice announced in his ear that the Navying, flat, opposite the Leonard House was on fire. One jump and "Deperate, Desmond, the Demonic Driver," lit in his pants and boots at the same time.

Grabbing a sheet and hat as he passed the hall, back the outside door was reached in ten seconds from receipt of the telephone call. Over the porch and down the steps in two jumps, "Bud" straightened out for the 150 yard dash to Market street.

He made it with his night shirt streaming behind him in the wind, while a crowd of anxious whippersnappers viewed the passing whirlwind. Rounding the Snyder corner and throwing open the doors was in the driver's seat, with the engine chugging by the time Chief Eadie and Officer Carlson stepped out of the hallway onto the scene.

Bud hesitated long enough to invite the police aboard the machine, when Chief Eadie informed him he never attended fires on April 1st. Then the speedy fireman tumbled. With a sheepish grin he out of that car and hit the alley route for his bed and pleasant dreams.

He knows the conspirators and promises to get even.

POPULAR FOURTH WARD COUPLE MARRIED

Sergeant Worrell M. Jones and Miss Ruth Beightol well known and popular Clearfield young people, secured a marriage license Saturday and slipping quietly over to Port Matilda, Pa., had the words said Monday morning which made them man and wife.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Jones, of Dorey street, and made a record as a brave Yankee soldier with Pershing in France. He was seriously wounded but has entirely recovered. His bride is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Beightol, of the Fourth Ward, and was employed at Kurtz Bros. store for several years.

The Progress joins their many friends in congratulations and the wish for them of a long and happily wedded life.

New York, April 1.—There was irregular price trend at the stock market opening today, with trading in small volume. United States Steel opened at 98 3/8 off, tobacco products 91 off 3/8, Mexican Petroleum 180 3/4 off 1/4.

REDRAFTING COMMITTEE READY TO REPORT BUT MONROE DOCTRINE AND JAP PLEAS NOT SETTLED

WILL BE DISCUSSED THURSDAY

By Carl D. Groat

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, April 1.—Despite President Wilson's impatient at the present delay there was strong evidence that the "big four" was still encountering bars to progress when it resumed its session today. Reparation, French territorial claims and the Hungarian situation were understood to constitute the principal suggestions for consideration. Some of the many optimistic suggestions declared the reparation question would be rapidly cleared up, barring unforeseen changes in present demands of foreign interests. Others, however, declared the matter of reparation was still far from settlement although admitting that there seems to be a trend to square all demands with the Germans. The "big four's" work was further tangled by injection of the Hungarian question yesterday afternoon.

By Fred S. Ferguson

PARIS, April 1.—The League of Nations will again occupy a prominent role in the peace work, Thursday when the league committee will meet to receive the new covenant from the drafting committee. The redraft which was completed by the printers late yesterday contains 26 articles, the same as the original draft. It is regarded as being considerably improved in working and carries several amendments.

The amendment carrying the Monroe Doctrine, Japanese claims for racial equality and France's recommendation for an international general staff will be brought up Thursday but definite information could be obtained in this report.

INDIANA "DRYS" ARE CELEBRATING DEMISE OF JNO. BARLEYCORN NEW WAR TAXES IN EFFECT THIS DAY

Indianapolis, Ind., April 1.—Impressive obsequies are to be held in this city tomorrow, but the occasion will be one of jubilee and not of mourning. The obsequies will be for John Barleycorn, who was laid away in Indiana a year ago when the State prohibition law came into effect, and who is expected soon to make his final exit from the country at large, unless the liquor interests succeed in their present plans for throwing a monkey wrench into the machinery of the federal "dry" amendment.

The foes of the saloon have gone ahead with their plans for the celebration in the confident belief that they will be able to block any attempt to sidetrack the Federal law. The celebration will be an all-day affair and will be conducted under the auspices of the Indiana Dry Federation. The speakers and other participants will include many prominent workers of the Prohibition Party, the W. C. T. U., the Anti-Saloon League of America and kindred organizations.

BEAVER COUNTY DRY

Beaver, April 1.—Beaver county was dry again today. The five remaining saloons and hotels closed their doors last midnight following action of Judge George A. Baldwin in refusing to grant licenses.

Washington, D. C., April 1.—Another batch of the special taxes levied under the provisions of the six-billion dollar revenue law are to come into effect today. The list includes taxes on transportation and other public facilities and on insurance companies.

The only change made in the old taxes is in the rate on births and seats of parlor cars and vessels, which is lowered from 1 per cent to 5 per cent. The new taxes on admission to theatres and other places of amusement and on club dues also come into operation today. The stamp taxes also are effective from this date also the tax of 5 per cent on jewelry.

Virtually all of the other taxes provided for in the new revenue law will come into effect on May 1 or soon thereafter. These will include the child labor tax, the soda fountain tax, which embraces ice cream and all soft drinks sold at soda fountains and the levies against the excess value of so-called semi-luxuries, which are articles of dress.

Miss Mary Liveright is home from Wellesley College for her Easter vacation.

William Holden, of Curwensville, transacted business here yesterday.

Miss Irene Buchanan, a student at Central State Normal school, Lock Haven, Pa., is home to spend her Easter vacation. Miss Buchanan was chosen president of the Normal Y. W. C. A. for the ensuing year.

PACKING INTERESTS RELIEVED FROM LICENSE RULES OF FOOD OFFICIALS

WASHINGTON, April 1.—All packers were relieved from control of the administration's license system by proclamation of President Wilson effective today. The President signed the proclamation in Paris the food administration announced here today. The proclamation provides that all persons, firms, corporations or associations engaged in importing and manufacturing and all packers and distributors of fresh, canned or cured beef, pork, mutton or lard has been released from license by the food administration.

GREEN FANCY

by GEORGE BARR MC CUTCHEON

Author of "GRAUSTARK," "THE HOLLOW OF HER HAND," "THE PRINCE OF GRAUSTARK," ETC.

Copyright by Doubt, Mend and Company, Inc.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Thomas K. Barnes, wealthy New Yorker on a walking trip through New England, is caught in a storm miles from his destination. At a roadside point he meets a girl in the same plight. While they discuss the situation an automobile sent to meet the girl, arrives and Barnes is given a lift to her father's home, where she tells him that Barnes is a place called Green Fancy.

CHAPTER II.—At the tavern Barnes falls in with a stranded troupe of "starring" actors, headed by Lyndon Rushcroft and becomes interested in them.

CHAPTER III.

Mr. Rushcroft dissolves, Mr. Jones intervenes, and Two Men Ride Away. Mr. Rushcroft explained that he had had his supper. In fact, he went on to confess, he had been compelled, like the dog, to "speak" for it. What could be more disgusting, more degrading, he mumbled, than the spectacle of a man who had appeared in all of the principal theaters of the land, as star and leading support to stars, settling for his supper by telling stories and reciting poetry in the taproom of a tavern?

"Still," he consented, when Mr. Barnes insisted that it would be a kindness to him, "since you put it that way, I dare say I could do with a little snack, as you so aptly put it. Just a bite or two. What have you ready, Miss Tilly?"

Miss Tilly was a buxom female of forty or thereabouts, with spectacles. She was one of a pair of sedentary waitresses who had been so long in the employ of Mr. Jones that he hated the sight of them.

Mr. Rushcroft's conception of a bite or two may have staggered Barnes, but it did not bewilder Miss Tilly. He had four eggs with his ham, and other things in proportion. He talked a great deal, proving in that way that it was a supper well worth speaking for. Among other things he dilated at great length upon his reasons for not being a member of the Players or the Lambs in New York city. It seems that he had promised his dear, devoted wife that he would never join a club of any description. Dear old girl, he would as soon have cut off his right arm as to break any promise made to her. He brushed something away from his eyes, and his chin, contracted, trembled slightly. "What is it, Mr. Bacon?" Any word from New York?

Mr. Bacon hovered near, perhaps hungrily.

"Our genial host has instructed me to say to his latest guest that the rates are two dollars a day, in advance, all dining-room checks payable in presentation," said Mr. Bacon, apologetically.

Rushcroft exploded. "O scurvy insult," he boomed. "Confound his—!" The new guest was amiable. He interrupted the outraged star. "Tell Mr. Jones that I shall settle promptly," he said with a smile.

"It has just entered his bean that you may be an actor, Mr. Barnes," said Bacon.

Miss Tilly, overhearing drew a step or two nearer. A sudden interest in Mr. Barnes developed. She had not noticed before that he was an uncommonly good-looking fellow. She always had said that she adored strong, athletic faces.

back along Tedon of the Royal Geographical Society. Member of the Local Legion and the Sons of the American Revolution.

Added to this, the mere announcement that he was in a position to indulge a fancy for long and perhaps aimless walking tours through major or less out-of-the-way sections of his own country, to say nothing of excursions in Europe.

He was rich. Perhaps not as rich as measured in these Muls-like days, but rich beyond the demands of aversion. His legacy had been an ample one. The fact that he worked hard at his profession from one year's end to the other—not excluding the six delirious to mentally productive jaunts—was proof sufficient that he was not content to subsist on the fruits of another man's enterprise. He was a worker.

The first fortnight of a proposed six weeks' jaunt through upper New England terminated when he laid aside his heavy pack in the little bedroom at Hart's Tavern. Cockcrow would find him ready and eager to begin his third week. At least so he thought. But, truth be told, he had come to his journey's end; he was not toiling his pack for many a day to come.

After setting the mind of the landlord at rest, Barnes declined Mr. Rushcroft's invitation to "quaff" a cordial with him in the taproom, explaining that he was exceedingly tired and intended to retire early.

Instead of going up to his room immediately, however, he decided to have a look at the weather. His uneasiness concerning the young woman of the crossroads increased as he peered at the wall of blindness looming up beyond the circle of light. She was somewhere outside that sinister black wall and in the smothering grasp of those inviolable hills, but was she living or dead? Had she reached her journey's end safely? He tried to extract comfort from the confidence she had expressed in the ability and integrity of the old man who drove with far greater recklessness than one would have looked for in a wild and irresponsible youngster.

He recalled with a thrill the imperious manner in which she gave directions to the man, and his surprising servility. It suddenly occurred to him that she was no ordinary person; he was rather amazed that he had not thought of it before.

Moreover, now that he thought of it, there was, even in the agreeable recollections she had made to his offerings, the faint suggestion of an accent that should have struck him at the time but did not for the obvious reason that he was then not at all interested in her. Her English was so perfect that he had failed to detect the almost imperceptible foreign flavor that now took definite form in his reflections. He tried to place this accent. Was it French or Italian or Spanish? Certainly it was not German.

He took a few turns up and down the long porch, stopping finally at the upper end. The clear, inspiring clang of a hammer on an anvil fell suddenly upon his ears. He looked at his watch. The hour was nine, certainly an unusual time for men to be at work in a forge. He remembered two men in the taproom who were bare armed and wore the shapeless leather aprons of the smithy.

He had been standing there not more than half a minute peering in the direction from whence came the rhythmic bang of the anvil—at no great distance, he was convinced—

TELEPHONE COMPANIES TO COLLECT TAX

The Bell Telephone company and the H. & C company have made arrangements for the collecting of the tax on certain telephone messages, as required by the new Revenue act which becomes effective April 1, 1919.

On each message of more than 14c but not more than 50c, including overtime and messenger charges, the tax is 5c. When the charge is more than 50c, the tax is 10c. The law directs that the tax be collected from the person paying for the message, and the Telephone Company is held responsible for the collection of the tax.

The monthly toll service statement which the Telephone company renders to its subscribers will show the messages on which the tax is imposed and the amount of such tax, in addition to the regular charges for service.

On calls from public telephone stations equipped with coin boxes, the total charges quoted by the operator will include the tax which will be collected in the regular manner along with the charge for the service.

PLAYING BASEBALL AND ROLLER SKATING ON STREETS NOT ALLOWED

Playing baseball on the streets and roller skating on the sidewalks of the town are not only dangerous pastimes but they are provided against in the Borough Ordinances. Therefore I take this means of notifying all parents and children as well that from this date on the ordinances against baseball playing on the streets and roller skating on the sidewalks will be made to pay the penalty prescribed in made to pay the penalty prescribed in said ordinances.

Parents are responsible for the actions of their children and should caution them regarding these offences and thus save trouble.

Hints On Winter Driving

Reading—and heeding—these hints on winter driving will make you a wealthier, wiser, happier motorist in frigid weather. They are reproduced from a bit of a booklet just issued by the United Motors Service, Incorporated, which compiles the advice and suggestions of the DeLoe, Kixson and Remy organizations. When they appear in these columns, learn them in substance and then turn where you can refer to them. They may help you out in trouble some cold day.

For Proper Generator Operation

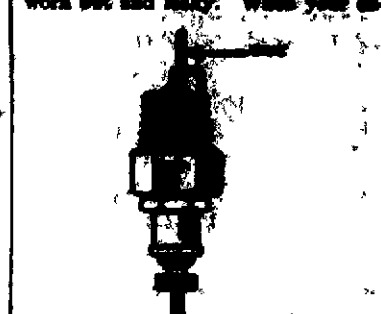

Watch the ammeter—in cold weather you make shorter runs, use the cranks more frequently, and burn lights more hours. Low generating—or none at all—will soon exhaust the battery. If the instrument on the dash which reads "charge" and "discharge" doesn't show from 6 to 10 points on the "charge" side—depending on the car—at say, 20 miles per hour, you may be inviting trouble.

Examine plugs—Failure to run evenly on "all six" is an often plug trouble as anything else. Plug points not only get near together but too far separated. Plug porcelain, the not

give mines, look fast to the plugs. (See illustration above.)

Contact points—These points may be due to dirt or worn contact points. The contact points should be properly adjusted. If they are not, a few minutes at the contact station, occasionally having the distributor examined.

Condenser trouble will be indicated by a rapid burning and pitting of the contact points. The condenser should be submitted for inspection and test.

BARN IS FARMER'S BEST INVESTMENT

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm. He is a well known authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1224 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only include three-cent stamp for reply.

"Better barns mean better and more productive cows." That is the axiom of the successful business farmer. Cows are valuable. More valuable than they have been in the history of the dairy industry in America. As profit producers they stand at the head of the livestock division of the farming industry.

When the owner of a dairy herd demonstrates to himself that a warm, well ventilated stable causes greater production at the time of the

by 36 feet. The horse barn forms an ell and is 30 feet by 36 feet. Adjoining the rear of the cow barn are two silos, 14 feet in diameter.

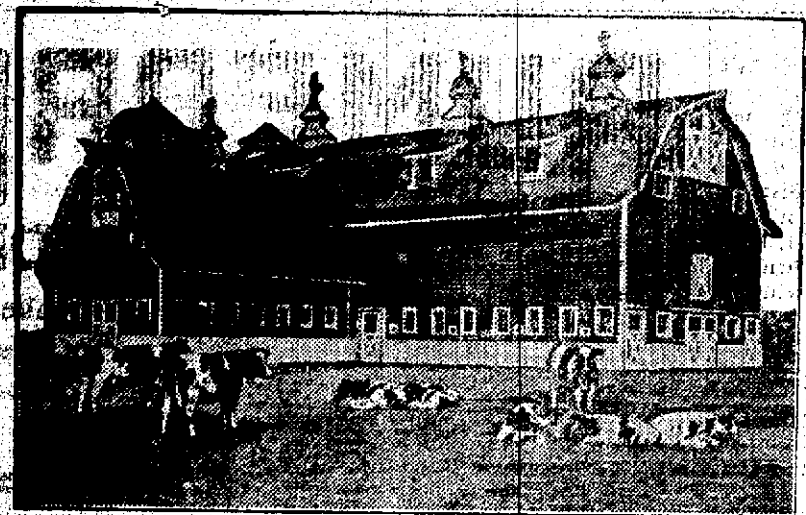

Accommodates 38 Cows.
The cow stable is designed to accommodate 38 animals in single stalls, and four others in pens. The cows are faced out, a feed alley, five feet wide, being between the wall and the line of stalls.

The litter alley runs through the center of the building and is eight feet four inches wide, forming a driveway through the barn. The advantage of this arrangement is that a team can be driven in one door, pass between the stalls, and go out at the other end of the building. At the rear of the cow barn are two feed rooms, connected with the silos. There also is a toilet room here.

The horse barn will accommodate ten animals, eight in stalls and two in box stalls. The barn office is on one side of the entrance and the harness room on the other.

While only the general scheme of equipment for this building is shown, the plans contemplate the use of many specialties that make for efficiency in doing the work required. The doors are equipped with storm-tight, easy rolling hangers; drinking water is piped to individual drinking cups at each stall; providing clean, fresh water at all times of the day or night; feed and litter carriers on overhead tracks make the distribution of food and the removal of manure easy. In the hay loft, a carrier is provided.

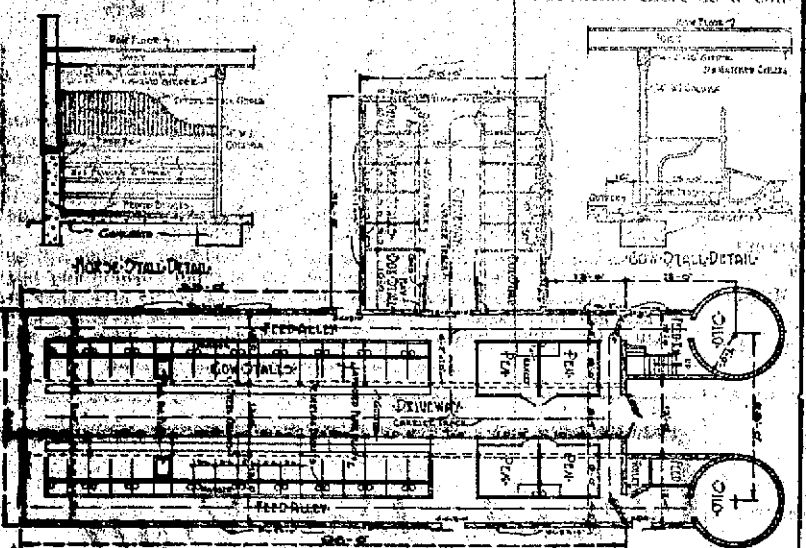

Careful provision has been made for ventilation, one of the most important features of the modern dairy and horse barn. There are air pumps on cupola ventilators on the roof, three large ones on the ridge of the main building and a smaller one on the south

year when milk brings the highest price, he wonders why he did not build earlier. And when, with the modern barn equipment, he realizes that a great part of the unpleasant work about the barn can be performed easily and with less effort, he is keen for modern conveniences in the barn as he is to have them in the house.

A comfortable cow is the best revenue producer. A cow that is comfortable is allowed to go freely until given times in the day does not produce the quantity of milk she is capable of. A cow that is comfortable is properly ventilated, a cow must consume a proper quantity of food to keep her milk warm. In a tight stable a greater portion of this food is converted into milk. Giving water in the barn, where the cow can take a drink whenever she is thirsty, also means greater milk production. Put the water into the troughs to do it before instead of after milking. This is the advice of the successful dairyman.

Good Buildings Reduce Waste.
During the last two years, the business farmer has been making money.

Floor Plan of Combination Barn.

But he has realized that with the proper buildings he could have eliminated much of the waste around the farm, and have made more profit. Now he has a chance to get the buildings that have been denied him during war.

A combination dairy and horse barn, such as is shown in the accompanying illustration, is the ideal building, since it brings under one roof all the work of caring for the live stock. Constructed with a trussed rafter gambrel self-supporting roof, arranged conveniently so that the work can be performed with the least number of steps, equipped with all the labor-saving devices, and built as sanitary as barns can be made. This building will prove a valuable addition to the farm group.

While this barn will add much to the attractiveness of the farm landscape, what will appeal to the business sense of the farmer is its interior. The floor plan that is shown gives the details of its arrangement. The main or cow stable, part of the barn, is 36

the wing. These aerators pull the foul air out of the stables through well insulated, foul air flues. Fresh air comes in through the windows as they are tilted back at the top, resting on galvanized iron window ventilating shields. With these the fresh air is deflected to the stable ceiling, where it diffuses gradually; no direct draft blows against the animals. In summer, the windows are greatest, germicidal. Plants of windows are provided in this barn.

Taken all together, the plan shows all the practical features that a modern barn should have to make the animals comfortable and productive. There is another side to this question of building a barn. A strictly modern barn building with all the best equipment is a good investment. There is a further side.

Much Labor Eliminated.
Perhaps the country's greatest business, that in the past there have been many disadvantages that have given the young men from the farm under the old conditions. The work was not pleasant, especially that in the barn. But when there is a com-

CHICAGO SELECTS A MAYOR TODAY

(By United Press)

Chicago, April 1.—Chicago labor declared a holiday today to see that the city gets the right sort of mayor. Wherever it could be done without too severe a jolt to industry union men absented themselves from their tasks to vote for John Fitzpatrick, the new "labor party" candidate for the chief executive's job.

Father Dearborn had his pick of six men who are anxious to manage his big municipal business for the ensuing four years. They are:

Mayor William Dale Thompson, Republican.

Robert Sydnor, Democrat.

MacLay Hynes, Independent.

John Fitzpatrick, labor.

John Collins, Socialist.

Rodolph Carns, Socialist-Labor.

The elections today formed a stirring climax for a campaign that has been unusually warm from its pre-primary period.

Thompson and Hale of the old parties fought each other vigorously. Hynes, pointing to his record as state attorney, waged unrelenting war on both men.

The labor party, headed by Fitzpatrick, worked more quietly, but had the backing of most of the city's union men, an organization expected to prove a great help in getting out a silent vote.

Fitzpatrick was expected to detract much from the usual socialist vote. However, both the Socialist and Labor parties were affected somewhat by a split which put a third candidate for those votes into the field.

Labor union officials deprecated a tendency among their following to term today's holiday a "one day strike." Industry was not to be hampered, they said, but all men who could were asked to aid at the polls.

Regular Old Fashioned April First Mystery Is With Us Today

Tracks always have the atmosphere of mystery about them. Doesn't make any difference whether they be railroad tracks, which lead into the land of far away, or little or big foot prints.

Tracks key up your imagination—particularly odd looking tracks. Perhaps you can't figure out the sort of animal that has passed on its journey. That adds to the zest of the question.

Just because today is April 1st, with its pranks and mysteries it is a right good time to try to puzzle out the odd looking tracks which appear in this issue.

Many animals have big, husky feet and it's worth while brushing up on this track business to discover what kind of animal makes this sort of foot print.

After all, a little fun adds to the joy of living. And you'll undoubtedly get some fun out of this real April first mystery.

"Follow the Tracks" is the cry all over the nation today. Study this mystery picture and those that follow tomorrow, Thursday and Friday. It'll be a lot of enjoyment. Just "Follow the Tracks!"

SHEFFER HOUSE WILL BE RAZED TO GROUND

The Hotel Shener, the three-story building on the corner of Front and Pine streets, which for years has been a Phillipsburg landmark, having been continuously a public inn since Civil war days, is to be "completely" torn down, and a handsome new business block erected on the site.

Louis Linberg, who purchased the property from the First National bank of Phillipsburg will use the structure exclusively as a store. The new block will be built on the Lloyd House lot, the building which was the property of the late W. A. Hoyt, a pioneer of Altoona.

What Fordson Service Will Do For You

There are two big factors to consider when you are buying a tractor—both equally important—the tractor itself and the service rendered.

A tractor which is standing idle because the service station is far away or because the dealer hasn't the proper parts is a poor investment, no matter how well the tractor itself may be made.

Fordson Tractors are selling by the thousands every month and are giving universal satisfaction all over the world because of this:

The tractor itself is made as durable, dependable, efficient and economical as the best engineering skill, the finest materials and workmanship can make it.

And added to this wherever a Fordson Tractor is sold, you will find parts and service as quickly and easily available as the hero-sense you put into the tank.

Our service means this to you. First that we will thoroughly instruct you how to get the most out of your tractor—how to operate it properly so as to avoid trouble—how to make all minor repairs and adjustments so that on rare occasions will you have to call for help.

Then when you do require help for repair work or parts you will find us ready at a moment's notice.

Our stock of parts is complete, our mechanics are experts.

Fordson service is delivered to your farm.

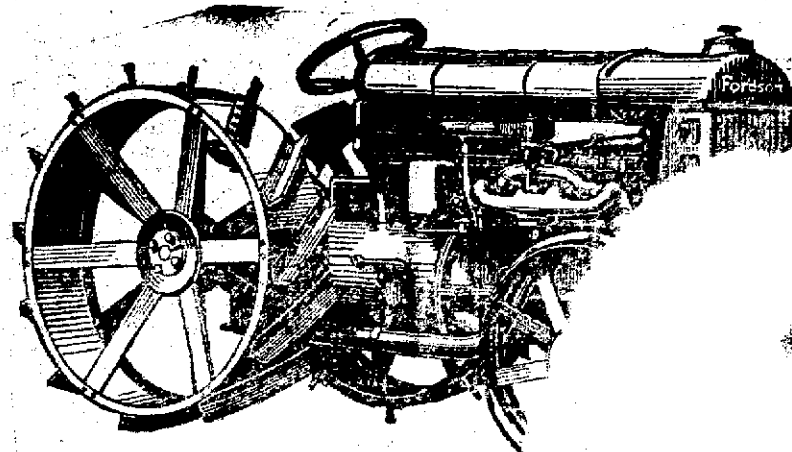

To own a Fordson means that you own a durable, dependable, economical tractor that will serve you every working day in the year.

The Fordson company make it durable and dependable.

We keep it so.

YOU can't escape a cape, my dear.
Springy, clingy lightness of satin,
serge and wool have subtle appeal.

SOME NEW & NOVEL TOUCHES

BY MARGARET RHOE
(Written for The United Press)

You can't escape a cape, my dear.
The fashion first was Eve's:
She made herself some swaggar ones
Of all the choicest leaves.
And when the leaves began to fall
She wrapped herself in thought,
And blushed also mantled her
When with the apple caught.
Her mantle fad's descended now
On modish maids today,
Though just a trifle thicker are
Their fabrics, I should say.

New York, March 28—The spring
maid is all wrapped up in capes as voluminously as her predecessor Madame Winter. No matter how she tries she can't seem to get out from under the graceful folds. The only difference between the winter and Spring models is that those folds
have dwindled from the heavy richness of fur, velvet and quivertyn to
the springy, clingy, lightness of serge,
satin, wool jersey or tricotine.

If we follow old Omar's admonition
and fling out winter garment of repentance in the fires of spring it
will only be to do another exactly
similar in cut and style.
Of course the Spring capes have
some new and novel touches to bring
them up to date, such as embroidery
ornamentation, scarf collars ending in swishing tassels; patch pockets and
button evenscences jutting out in
nobby designs.

A perfect jewel of a model is of
pearl gray jersey with a deep soft
cape collar edged in a wide band of black silk braid. The wide braid also finishes the slashes for the arms and
a vivid lining of orange and black
checker board satin shows free and
unchecked when the wind blows.

A smart draped cape of black taf-
feta has one of the deep soft collars
also, which is edged with a wide
fringe of long narrow taffeta ribbon
loops, as is also the bottom of the cape. The lining of this distinctive model is a vivid apple green silk
crepe, fruitfully sprinkled with cherry
polka dots and plum-hued dashes.

Almost all of the cape linings strike
such a gay, joyous and riotous color
note that they seem to indicate the
real inner nature of their fair wear-
ers. A demure young thing, closely swathed from her throat to her pointed toe in the enveloping folds of a
navy blue serge cape, surely reveals
her true inner self when she throws
back the cape and unfurls the joy of
the Mandarin red lining, that hectic
new shade which is a brighter, lighter, younger sister to henna red and
a first cousin to burnt orange.

Sort of a summer evolution of the
cape are the new old mid-Victorian
scarfs which are to cling to fair
shoulders again with all the elusive
grace and piquant charm of the cling-
ing vine pre-suffragette era.

Quaint crepe de chine ones with
woven figured borders on either end
comes in pastel tones, lovely, cloudy
chiffon ones with printed borders of
roses and garlands, exquisite lace
ones of filmy black chamilly or the creamy silky meshes of the Spanish
mantilla, gay Bandere striped ones
of Romana silk, and saucy little taf-

feta ones in black, gray or blue, lined
with a contrasting light color and self fringed all around. They are all irresistible and you'll find you're
much more fascinating if you shrug
your shoulders in them rather than
at them.

There is as much art and coquetry
in gracefully managing a scarf as there is in manipulating a fan. They can't freeze an up-to-date 1919 female
however. She can step as airily from her warworker uniform into the butterfly stuff of a ruffled organdie and
the film of a chiffon scarf as if she had never been out of 'em. The
hand that drove a motor lorry in France can flip a fan as effectively,
and the shoulders that were put to
the wheels of war can shrug in a scarf as seductively as the 100 per cent. prunes and prisms female that
never got out of her shell or her
scarf. So don't scare at the scarf.
Just dare it and wear it.

AS THE TYRONE FELLOW SAW IT

The Tyrone-Herald in its report of
the girls basket ball game wound up
its article as follows:

The team that played Tyrone last
night at Clearfield was not the same
team that put up such a hard fight at Tyrone. It seems that the coach expected a hard game and endeavored
to counteract the great speed of the Tyrone team by superior weight, so
he substituted the employed girls for
the younger set. This action of Director, Graffius did not meet with the approval of the younger girls or of the
devotees which was evidenced by the large number of persons in the audience who cheered the visiting team.
This team did not display the class of
basket ball shown by the regular team.

After the game the Tyrone girls
were royally entertained by the Clear-
field High Sophomore girls' team and
the class at the beautiful new High school building on Market street, and
later in the evening at the home of
Miss Mabel Brown, a former member
of the faculty of Tyrone High. The Tyrone Girls' team certainly appreciate the kindness of the sophomore class and Miss Brown.

Oliver Schell, of the High school
squad, was along on the trip, and had
charge of the scoring for Tyrone,
while Miss Olson, of the High faculty,
very ably chaperoned the girls.
Clearfield's hopes were interred the
same night they died.

A Good Housewife IN PEACE TIME

This should be the supreme test for a woman when she knows, and can demonstrate that nothing is wasted or left over unused, of the requisite food supplies of her household.
But this is just what every woman does not know how to successfully accomplish.

"The Cook Book of Left-Overs"

A wonderful work on every possible phase of kitchen economy, solves every problem in the food question of the home, and by a large number of new and original recipes shows how waste of food can be entirely eliminated and all left-overs be transformed into delightfully pleasing dishes for the next or a subsequent meal.

STOP THE WASTE BY USING THE LEFT OVERS FOR NEW DISHES

This new peace time cook book has been carefully compiled by culinary specialists to enable the cook to utilize in the most savoury way all left-overs from the daily meals.

when some one spoke suddenly at his elbow. He whirled and found himself facing the grumpy landlord.

"Good Lord! You startled me," he exclaimed. His gaze traveled past the fat figure of Putnam Jones and rested on that of a second man, who leaned, with legs crossed and arms folded, against the porch post directly in front of the entrance to the house. His features almost wholly concealed by the long-brimmed slouch hat that came down over his eyes. He, too, it seemed to Barnes, had sprung from nowhere.

"Pierce night," said Putnam Jones, observing the corner pipe from his lips. Then, as an afterthought, "Where'd you walk from today?"

"I slept in a farmhouse last night, about fifteen miles north of this place," he said.

"That's a little ways out of Barnes," speculated Mr. Jones, "isn't it?"

"Goin' over to Canada?"

"No. I shall turn west, I think, and strike for the Lake Champlain country."

"I suppose you've traveled right smart in Europe?"

"Quite a bit, Mr. Jones."

"Any particular part?"

"What about them countries down about Bulgaria and Roumania? I've been considerable interested in what's going to become of them if Germany gets licked. What do they get out of it, either way?"

Barnes spent the next ten minutes speculating upon the future of the Balkan states. Jones had little to say. He was interested, had drunk in all the information that Barnes had to impart. He puffed at his pipe, nodded his head from time to time, and occasionally put a leading question. And quite as abruptly as he introduced the topic he changed it.

"Not many automobiles up here this time of the year," he said. "I was a little surprised when you said a fellow had given you a lift. Where from?"

"The crossroads a mile down. He came from the direction of Froggs' Corner and was on his way to meet someone at Spanish Falls. It appeared that there was a misunderstanding. The driver didn't meet the train, and the person he was going after was all the way to the forks. We passed each other there, Mr. Jones, and we guided the stranger to the house. She was bound for a place called Green Fancy."

"Did you say that?"

"Yes. I was proposing to help her out of her predicament when the bell rang and she came racing down the steps."

"What for sort of looking lady was that?"

"She wore a veil," said Barnes succinctly.

"Could that impression. By the way, Mr. Jones, what and where is Green Fancy?"

"It's a green house," began the landlord, lowering his voice. "It's about two miles and a half from here, up the mountain. It's a house and people live in it, same as any other house. That's about all there is to say about it."

"Who is it called Green Fancy?"

"Because it's a green house," replied Jones succinctly. "Green as a spring." A man named Curtis built it a couple of years ago and he had a few blue about paint. It green, might be a little crazy, for all I know. Anyhow, after he got it finished he settled down to live in it, and from that day to this he's never been out of the place."

"Isn't it possible that he isn't there at all?"

"Well, there, all right. Every now and then he has visitors—just like this woman today—and sometimes they come down here for supper. They don't hesitate to speak of him, so he must be there. Miss Tilly has got the idea that he is a recluse. If you know what that is."

The door of the saloon had been thrown open and someone was leading forth freshly shod horses.

A moment later the horses—prancing, high-spirited animals—their heads held by a strapping blacksmith, came into view. Barnes looked in the direction of the steps. The two men had disappeared. Instead of stopping directly in front of the steps the smith led the horses a distance

"It's plain to see," said Mr. McGee, "that there's a lot of business here. That's Golden Sun. The children cry for it you see."

beyond and into the darkness.

Putnam Jones abruptly changed his position. He insinuated his long body between Barnes and the doorway, at the same time rather loudly proclaiming that the rain appeared to be over.

"Yes, sir," he repeated, "he seems to have let up altogether. Ought to have a nice dry tomorrow. Mr. Barnes—nice, cool day for walkin'."

Voices came up from the darkness. Jones had not been able to cover them with his own. Barnes caught two or three sharp commands, rising above the pawing of horses' hoofs, and then a great clatter as the mounted horsemen rode off in the direction of the crossroads.

Barnes waited until they were muffled by distance and then turned to Jones with the laconic remark:

"They seem to be foreigners, Mr. Jones."

Jones' manner became natural once more. He looked against one of the posts and striking a match on his leg, relighted his pipe.

"Kind o' curious about 'em?" he drawled.

"I never entered my mind until this instant to be curious," said Barnes.

"Well, it entered their minds about an hour ago to be curious about you," said the other.

DON'T SUFFER WITH NEURALGIA

Use Soothing Musterole

When those sharp pains go shooting through your head, when your skull seems as if it would split, just rub a little Musterole on your temples and neck. It draws out the inflammation, soothes away the pain, usually giving quick relief.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Better than a mustard plaster and does not blister.

Many doctors and nurses frankly recommend Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, sciatica, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or limbs, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frost-bite—colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). It is always dependable.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

Mr. A. Z. Wolf, head of the firm of Wolf, Edmiston & Co. was a DuBois visitor yesterday where he transacted business.

Mr. James Richards disposed of his runabout automobile yesterday to DuBois parties. Mr. Richards is proprietor of one of the most popular tonorial establishments in Curwensville.

Mike Kovach, of the firm of Kovach & Vaughn, has a little daughter in the Clearfield hospital under treatment for gland trouble. The little one will also have its adenoids removed before being brought home.

Mrs. Mary Hudson, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. LaPorte, for the past month, left for Olean, N. Y., yesterday where she will make her home with a sister until the return of her husband who is serving with the A. E. F. in France.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Lantz are packing their goods and getting ready to remove to their new home at Mt. Union. Rev. Lantz on Sunday preached two powerful sermons which moved many of his congregation to tears, he himself showing much emotion during the discourse. The Lantz family during their residence in Curwensville has made many friends who will never forget them, no difference where their lot may be cast. Mr. Lantz is a man who has made friends with saint and sinner alike, and departs from this town carrying with him the knowledge that the entire population wish him unbounded success in his new field of labor. The new minister, Rev. Biddle is expected to arrive with his family on Wednesday at which time his congregation will give them a royal welcome at the parsonage.

The members of the Kelly hunting camp, of which Rev. Lantz was a member turned out in a body Sunday forenoon to hear their hunting comrades preach for probably the last time. It is said that there were more men attended church Sunday morning at the M. E. church than was ever known before. The large auditorium was crowded to its capacity.

Messrs. Orvis Kerns and I. D. Kerns the former residing in Rossmore, Va., and the latter at Brockport, Pa., spent Sunday in Curwensville with a sister. They attended the funeral of their sister, Mrs. L. C. Dyer, who was buried at Osceola on Saturday, and whose death was mentioned in the Curwensville letter a few days ago.

A little child of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mays, residing on Anderson avenue South Side, is very ill suffering with an attack of congestion of the lungs.

Mr. Doyle, of Ridgway, president of a collecting agency, was in town yesterday shaking hands with old friends and transacting business in his line.

Messrs. Earl Clark and Lew McLaughlin expect to leave shortly for the oil fields in and around Tulsa, Okla. They contemplate spending the summer in that land of oil activity. It will be no wild goose chase with Clark as he has been in that country once or twice before.

Mr. Henry Heitzman, formerly proprietor of the Busy Bee restaurant, has purchased a horse and wagon and will now give his attention to the draying business.

Mr. M. D. Kirk, chief engineer for the Pittsburgh Coal and Iron company, was in town and spent Saturday and Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Cicero thought he'd let the poor fish "Thoroughly" enjoy himself!

LEITZINGER BROTHERS

A. M. Kirk and with his brother H. P. Kirk. He returned to Pittsburgh on Monday.

Chief of Police Clark is remodeling the interior of his home. Carpenters, painters and paper hangers have been busy there for the past few days.

Mr. Creighton Clark, who has been in the northern part of the state for the past eight months has returned to his home here.

A small fire occurred at the home of Wm. Buck, Eastvue, Saturday. The fire originated from an overheated oil stove. Neighbors arrived in time to put the fire out before much damage was done. No alarm was sent in to the fire department.

During the month of March there was issued from the Curwensville postoffice 846 money orders, a slight falling off from the previous month. During the year 1918, this office did over $200,000 worth of business, not including money orders, war stamps or postal savings. $50,000 worth of war stamps were also sold. Yet there has been no increase of salary, although month by month the work of this office increases.

AUTHORITIES MAKING RIGID INVESTIGATION

Local authorities are making a careful investigation of all rumors that are likely to shed light on the origin of the destructive Grant block fire. Saturday a man while under the influence of liquor made threats against town properties. He was locked up, though officials are inclined to believe he is harmless. He will probably be released today, as it was shown he was not around the night of the fire.

Another arrest is likely to be made of a character who has been mentioned before as a fire bug.—Pittsburgh Journal.
